"Definitive Password Generator is an easy-to-use tool for creating passwords. It generates random passwords with a huge number of characters, numbers and special characters. After a password is generated, it is copied to the clipboard for copying to the application or web browser's clipboard, or for selecting for other purposes. You can select from different databases and include selected characters. You can also change the password length and set a minimum and maximum number of the used characters. Edit: After reading your question again, I feel I should mention that there is a built-in history where users can view the passwords they have generated, and can even edit them if necessary. You can also set it to display the resulting password in the next line, and it can store it in the clipboard for you to paste it when you need it. There are some
