Electric Mobile Studio is intended to assist developers in testing their web-based iOS apps in a safe environment. The application is capable of simulating the web browsing process for an iPhone or an iPad, enabling you to evaluate the performance and assess the reliability of your mobile apps. Accessibility and variate configuration options for simulators The application features a forthright interface with accessible options, providing one-click access to all the simulators. Thanks to the 'GroupControl' function, you can easily manage all the active simulator instances, refresh or activate them. Electric Mobile Studio offers support for various versions of iOS user agents and enables you to configure the simulator's settings prior to launching. As such, you can change the device orientation, activate or disable JavaScript and the HTML5 application cache. Moreover, it comes with options for enabling same-origin policy and instruct the simulator to use the geolocation API in order to send location data (set using the GPS simulator) to the visited webpages. Graphics acceleration ensures quick rendering. The simulators feature native graphics acceleration that allow fast rendering. Disabling this function can prove useful in situations when you want to access a webpage that requires more resources on an under-powered handset. Additionally, the application relies on the WebGL technology for allowing 2D and 3D graphics rendering. Powerful development tools and commands For your convenience, the package includes an integrated development toolset, allowing JavaScript debugging and DOM inspection. It can be used for generating complete CPU, CSS selector and heap snapshot profiles in order to evaluate the loading or execution time of each component. The application allows synchronized navigation across all the running simulators and enables you to take screenshots with just a click. A reliable testing and profiling utility Electric Mobile Studio enables developers to create responsive design webpages and web-based apps and evaluate their performance before deployment. It seamlessly integrates with

Visual Studio, allowing you to take advantage of its functionality in a familiar working environment. Key features: - Native graphics acceleration - Supports all iOS User Agent versions - Simulates the browser and webkit rendering engines - Native USB, Bluetooth, and GPS support - iOS Simulator Launch commands - Simulation start/stop and easy group control - jQuery plugin for easy AJAX requests - Debugger for editing HTML, JS and CSS - Screenshots of running or stopped simulators - Code and screenshot comparison - Heap profiles - Code highlighting and edit control
