That includes the leader of AEW, Cody Rhodes, who gave commentary on the two former WWE superstars' rivalry. The segment was not only a celebration of their friendship and recent reunion, it was also an endorsement for AEW and the opportunities it presents for those who show up to their events. How did it come about? Here's what Cody had to say: "This is a very special moment for us, because it's the first time in a long time that I've sat next to Seth and Dean, even if it was in commentary. So it's not just something where I go to the ring and the two of them are there and I just commentate. But we sat here and started picking the brains of these two guys, and I had the chance to give them the respect and the respect that they deserve. They are two of the best, just the best guys in the locker rooms. Like I said before, you have no idea what they've been through, and you have no idea what they've accomplished." Cody continued by saying that their recent friendship had contributed to Cody's decision to broadcast the Sunday Night Heat show. Cody also said that he wanted to make the Sunday night event special in a way he hasn't been able to do in the past. 1cb139a0ed
