Every year, more and more people decide to leave the church because they feel their spiritual needs are not met. There are many reasons why a person could quit the church and more often than not they have a bad experience with a pastor, pastor's family, or staff. In many cases, it is because people feel that they are missing out on important things to help them find joy, meaning, and purpose in their lives. For others, it could be because the church doesn't meet their physical needs. Whatever the reason, it's important to remember that you are loved, and someone needs to replace you. There are many people who attend church, but do not feel like they are part of the church, or the church is not meeting their needs. If that is you, there are churches that can meet your spiritual and physical needs, even if you are no longer attending. Here are three different types of churches that will meet your spiritual and physical needs. Bible Based Churches Bible based churches are churches that still base their beliefs on the Bible. In many cases, people leave a Bible based church because the church does not share the same beliefs as them. For example, a church that shares the same beliefs as them would make it easier for them to become active members. There are Bible
