Hulu's upcoming anthology series Legion, from FX's Emmy-winning drama series Legion, takes place in a world where superpowered beings from the 29th century, called the "Chosen," hold society as a whole in the grips of a massive conspiracy. Lili Simmons and Aubrey Plaza are the first actresses cast for Legion, along with Dan Stevens, Jemaine Clement, Bill Irwin, Jemaine Clement, Jeremie Harris, Dan Stevens, Rachel Keller, and Jean Smart. Simmons plays the title character, a woman with a unique mental illness who "draws strength from her experience in the [Dark] Zone, a place where people go to escape their worst selves." The character's daughter (Plaza) has witnessed her parents' divorce and, after taking time off, returns to the "den mother" that she and her mother have never been able to escape. Other characters include an ex-cop (Stevens), a veteran of the Vietnam war (Bill Irwin), a boy with extraordinary math skills (Jemaine Clement), a new recruit to the Legion (Jemaine Clement), and a two-fisted, "hard-drinking" former cop (Dan Stevens). Simmons has appeared in the feature films No Strings Attached and Final Destination 5. She recurred on the Fox comedy series Brooklyn Nine-Nine and is set to appear in an episode of the NBC series Timeless. Plaza has been seen on the feature film Grand Piano and Comedy Central's animated series Portlandia. Plaza has also appeared in the feature films T2: Trainspotting and Stranger Than Fiction. Legion, created by Noah Hawley and based on characters appearing in the X-Men comics created by Chris Claremont and Bill Sienkiewicz, will have an order of 13 episodes for its inaugural season. Hawley, who helped launch FX's breakout drama series, The Killing, wrote the script for the series. Legion will be produced by FX Productions, Hawley's in-house production banner, along with Fox
