Soviet submarine K-213 K-213 submarine (Russian: K-213) was a Project 671/MIKA P-21/Sokol-C submarine of the Soviet Union. The submarine was laid down on 1 November 1960, launched in October 1963, and was commissioned in December 1964. The submarine was disarmed in August 1990, at Balakovo, in the Soviet Union. Design Like all Project 671 submarines, K-213 was a tourist submarine, notable for its sparse design. It was the last of the Project 671 boats, which were the Soviet Union's first series of nuclear-powered attack submarines to enter service. It is also notable for its remarkable engineering feat, a feat which surpassed that of the U.S.S.R. and Soviet Navy's previous efforts: the first Cold War Soviet underwater craft to dive under. Operational history K-213 was taken out of service by the Russian Navy on 15 October 1993. The boat is now a museum ship, on display at the Spy Cape Naval Museum of Peter the Great in St. Petersburg, Russia. Specifications The submarine was long. ### What's New In?

Q: sed - remove new lines by replacing only space In sed replacement expression of `\s/g` just removes all the blank spaces, is there any command which removes all empty lines and replacing by a space. A: Oh... I think you missed a few things. `echo >FileA echo >FileB echo >>FileA echo >>FileB echo First >>FileA echo Second >>FileB echo Third >>FileB sed -i '/^$/d' FileA sed -i '/^$/d' FileB` If this is what you want to do. EDIT: Answer updated according to new information provided. It looks like you are trying to remove whitespace from 2 files (FileA and FileB). So there is another sed command available. Use this command `sed -i '/^$/d' FileA FileB` EDIT: The `z` flag is required. But if you want to remove all blank lines (new lines), the sed command will be `sed -i '/^$/dz' FileA FileB` The replacement expression of `\s` is not incorrect, only if you want to replace all the blank lines. If you want to replace only the blank lines and not the whitespaces in between the words, the following command will be more appropriate. `sed -i '/^$/dz' FileA FileB` A: You need to use the global flag, `-g`, to match a newline, and use a different delimiter character to specify the end of the line. `sed -i '/^$/d' file ^$` will match a newline with no text in it, which is what you're after. This means that all of your lines will be removed, even those that contain spaces. In recent years, the development of the information communication industry has achieved an unprecedented progress.
