the media industry, political and social background while focusing on the latest news and breaking stories.Kathleen Sebelius "There are a lot of agencies that are looking at how we can get more value," Ms. Sebelius said. The Obama administration has said it was looking for a better deal for patients and families from big drug companies, which sometimes make generous gifts of money, including $20 million in 2010 and $2 million in 2011 to the Institute of Medicine, an arm of the National Academy of Sciences, that advises the government. But the effort turned out to be ineffective. "The I.M. recommended that the health care law expressly prohibit Medicare from negotiating prices with drugmakers, but Congress did not act on that recommendation," the commission said. In 2014, the lawmakers directed the Health and Human Services Department to negotiate lower drug prices for Medicare, but did not pass a law or mandate any specific price. Republicans have also gone after the new health care law's requirement that insurance companies spend 80 percent of premiums on medical expenses, which they say is akin to price controls. They have raised concerns that the requirement is effectively a cut in the amount that insurers pay out in benefits, and tried to delay implementation. That push has generally been unsuccessful, with the administration pushing back strongly. "I look forward to using every tool at my disposal, including my legal authority and the tools Congress has given me," Mr. Obama said Tuesday. "To drive down the cost of health care, we need to continue to make sure we are paying doctors and hospitals the way they should be paid, and that means pushing back against any efforts that weaken Medicare or privatize it."HARRISON, N.J. — New York Red Bulls Sporting Director Denis Hamlett announced today that the club has signed Colombian midfielder Santiago Patiño to a
