Roblox is an online game platform and game creation system developed by Roblox Corporation that allows users to program games and play games created by other users. Created by David Baszucki and Erik Cassel in 2004 and released in 2006, the platform hosts user-created games of multiple genres coded in the programming language Lua. Roblox became the best-selling digital game in its initial launch states of New York, Illinois, and Washington, D.C., and the most played game in Seattle by 2007. For most of Roblox's history, it was relatively small, both as a platform and a company. Roblox began to grow rapidly in the second half of the 2010s, and this growth has been accelerated by the COVID-19 pandemic. Roblox is free to play, with in-game purchases available through a virtual currency called Robux. The game's main revenue source comes through in-game advertising, with monthly subscriptions offered at US$4.99 as of August 2020. The company has faced criticism from fans of the platform and developers who produced content on it for Roblox's lack of transparency around its moderation systems and its exploitative practices toward children. Roblox has been the target of numerous attempts at formal complaint and lawsuits, both by fans against the company and by adults against children who used the service. In 2018, a spokesman stated Roblox planned to spend $1 billion USD by 2020 to settle the issues from past lawsuits. Roblox broke into the global gaming market in the mid 2010s; by September 2018, it was estimated to have 20 million monthly users. However, a 2019 study using a sample of over 50 million players found the median Roblox player in 2018 was a 17-year-old boy. While Roblox is not the most popular gaming app among American kids aged 9 to 17, as of September 2018 it was the 10th-most popular. Roblox was the world's most downloaded game in September 2018. Roblox has a large user base in India. As of September 2019, Roblox has 158 million monthly active users, including more than half of all American children under 16. In 2020, it was the fastest-growing platform on Google Play with 33% growth.
